

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Settlement of the town of Killingly have been served with notices of appeal by three corporations and one individual of the town from assessments levied on their properties and the appeals will come before the superior court.

The appellants are the Goodyear Mills, Inc., The Connecticut Mills company, The Taunton Cotton Mills company, the company which is so closely allied with the Taunton Cotton company in assessing, also Frank A. Davis of Elmville road. The papers filed with the selectmen set forth the claims of the appellants that their properties are assessed by the board of assessors of the town of Killingly in excess of the true value of the properties and that the appellants were unable to secure reductions from the board of assessors.

The papers pertaining to the appeal of the Connecticut Mills company sets forth that the corporation on October 1 last owned 28 dwellings, 74 tenements, 131 lots and mill property of a net value of $211,418. The assessors increased this to $436,40. The assessors' figures are in excess of the present true value of mill company's properties, the notice of appeal sets forth, and that the board of assessors refused to permit a reduction.

In the case of the Taunton Cotton Mills company the corporation's value of its mill property was fixed at $75,000, and the assessors increased this to $142,350. The Goodyear Mills company's list of taxable property, which includes the manufacturing plant, 184 houses, 307 tenements and 104 building lots was valued by the company at $364,140 and increased by the assessors to $515,40.

In the case of Frank A. Davis, owner of a business block, dwellings and parcels of land in various parts of the town, the assessors increased his list from his own valuation of $12,042 to $41,153.

In his notice of appeal from the assessors' figures to the superior court, Mr. Davis, through his counsel, sets forth that the assessor did not follow any uniform rule of assessing; that in some cases they fixed valuation in excess of the true value of properties and that in other cases their figures were less than the market value of properties assessed.

The general public in the town of Killingly will be mightily interested in the outcome of these appeals, which are returnable the first Tuesday in June in the superior court.

concern, which are the prime source of the town's industrial and business prosperity, would operate adversely to the town's best interests, would tend to discourage development of the plants and keep other industries from locating here. Many of the town's taxpayers are as far apart as the poles in their opinions as to how heavily the textile and other manufacturing corporations of the town should be assessed, so it will be a source of satisfaction to both sides to have the opportunity to learn what the courts eventually will say about the matter.

The teacher training class conducted through the winter months at the Putnam State Trade school held its last session Wednesday evening. The course this year was devoted wholly to the faculty as a means of professional improvement, there being fifteen lectures the practice teaching part of the course being included in the regular work.

Classes in this course will begin again again in October. It is the intention of the teacher training instructor to enroll a limited number of students. Applicants to qualify must be preferably over 24 years of age, of good character, and competent tradesmen.

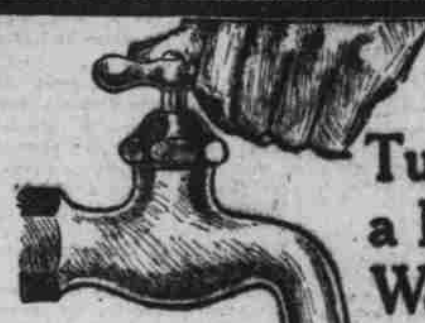

The object of the course is to train tradesmen, to become instructors of their trades and while the state board of education does not guarantee a position it will give preference to those who successfully complete the course when vacancies are to be filled in the various trade and vocational schools throughout the state.
